PILLARS INTERPRETATION REPORT

CHART

Name: OPRAH WINFREY

You are a yin Wood type, which indicates that you are in a process of building certain qualities into your life, either consciously or otherwise. You do this primarily through any means by which you can foster the creative, artistic and imaginative side of your nature. You have a preponderance of Yin in your nature, which gives you a strong empathy with people, and you tend to work very well with women. You find that your creative imagination is fired by your intimate dealings with people. You also feel that society at large is a benefactor to you on the whole. With children and friends you feel you have a lot to contribute and they greatly benefit by their interactions with you. Metal is the element that shapes your destiny but it is not found in your personal makeup, so your destiny lies outside your close personal contacts and is in relation to the larger social construct. In a curious sort of way this lack of a controlling emphasis in your life has made you a kind of law unto yourself. The element ruling your sense of self - Wood - finds its greatest support through society and your extended and immediate family as well as through your choice of partner.

This life is a time of the showing forth of inner gifts for you. It is a life of assuredness, social flair and precise attention to detail for you, as indicated by the Rooster. This also indicates that you will likely attract that sort of partner into your life - determined, confident, shrewd, extravagant, detailed, stimulating, perfectionist, proud and fond of style. These same qualities can apply to you at times, but you tend to like more of a spirited, vivacious kind of life. You have a certain flair of expression that comes from deep, inner wells of acquired wisdom. This can cause you to seem a little excessive and showy at times, but what people may not understand is that whatever you display is backed up by proven ability and knowledge and has a solid foundation in past experience. You tend to have to find your own means of self-discipline, for you have not had close contacts against which you have been able to test yourself. Your family of birth is supportive. You feel a deep kinship with them. You feel a real sense of co-operation with your partner and have a gentle exchange with this person. From the standpoint of the outer observer you can be a very determined and aggressive person sometimes, but this masks an inner nature actually geared toward the celebration of all that life has to offer and the full expression of the considerable gifts you have. You do not find a ready or sympathetic forum for expressing these qualities. The times when you best express these qualities are when you get back in touch with the plans you are supposed to give full expression to in this life.

In marriage/partnership, you tend toward a stylish and comfortable life and in your later years will likely find yourself engaged in many imaginative and creative pursuits. You desire an inventive and a fruitful life and are somewhat likely to have it. The home base is important to you and you may find that you work from home at some point. Your partner, through great stamina and sound business sense, can eventually provide the kind of home base for you that would be the envy of all your friends. You desire your partner to be a true inspiration to you, to stimulate your mind and to draw out the highest spirituality in you. There is a possibility of a conducive relationship with them, but because of the nature of the phase of life your inner evolution represents, they will seem perfectionist and unable to bend because of pride sometimes. This is meant to show you about your own inner nature and to bring you back in line with your own purpose, because you are a person of great abilities, to be sure, but other people have great abilities, too, and no person can do everything or even anything to perfection. It is better to shine with people rather than to try to out-do them.

Your work life inclines toward the practical and the enterprising, and you do well in careers where you can, through practical insight and a calm, centered approach, show how calm attention to detail can yield bold and brilliant results over time. You seem to have a real knack with money, though, and once you become established - though you are already good at making money - you could do even better if you shared some of your secrets for success among trusted friends and acquaintances and even began some philanthropic work. They feel that your imagination can carry them to places that they have not previously envisioned, and that whatever you touch has a hint of the artist in it. Because of this, they can advise you in kind on the material side of your life and give you the inspiration that you need and the motivation that feeds you to eventually acquire the things you desire. You are socially somewhat loquacious. You feel that you can somehow produce the kind of social framework within which you move. Since you have a communal view of society and the ability to become a co-creator within society, along with imagination, you can make things happen in that world.

In your later years you will be known as a person who knows how to call in the right people to get done what is needed. If your life goes according to plan, you will have produced a lot of inner change and growth within your life. You may not have attained the outer security you have sought, but you have learned a lot about yourself and you will have developed an inner resilience over the years. This gives you the muse you need to pursue your love of beauty and nature and look to the next steps ahead for you as you look back on a life well-lived. Though your approach may seem casual, you have learned presence over the years. People will have learned to revere you, to be inspired by you and to honor your accomplishments. And, when you finally journey on to the Heavenly Fields, you will be honored as a far-sighted and insightful Ancestor - affectionately known as the "Rooster Crowing at Noon", whose great talents were on display for all, and whose wisdom flowed like Rain Water from the heavens. You were able to rise above all circumstances and are still able to guide everyone left behind through the legacy of your foresight, imagination, solid manner and light you were able to bring to bear.
